

Materials, Design and Technology (Hard Materials Technology) Teacher Vacancies

The Department for Education, Children and Young People (DECYP) - Tasmania is looking for dedicated Materials, Design and Technology (Hard Materials Technology) teachers ready to inspire the next generation in a place that's as rewarding as it is beautiful.

Undertake a range of teaching and teaching related duties including:

- design and deliver practical project-based learning experiences that integrate design thinking with hands-on construction skills.
- assessment of students' work and implementation of individual learning programs.
- application of suitable student behaviour management strategies.
- use of flexible teaching strategies and processes.
- demonstrate proficiency in woodworking, metalworking, and other material technologies including hand tools, power tools, and machinery operation.
- preparation and implementation of appropriate learning programs incorporating woodwork and metalwork.
- oversee workshop inventory, ordering materials and supplies for student projects.
- workshop management and the use of resources.
- maintain stores and equipment, including the procurement of tools and equipment.
- implement and enforce comprehensive workshop safety protocols and risk management procedures in line with Occupational Health and Safety requirements.
- coordinate the presentation of students' work of projects undertaken.
- clean, repair and maintain equipment in safe working order.
- involvement in curriculum and administrative committees and, where appropriate, other decision-making bodies.

1 Eligibility

To be considered for the process, you must have current or previous established skills in teaching woodwork and/or metalwork in the classroom as well as knowledge and experience working within the Australian Curriculum.

You must also:

- hold relevant qualifications in Education and be able to obtain (or currently hold) a certificate of provisional or full Teacher registration; granted by the Teachers Registration Board (Tasmania) in accordance with the provisions of the Teachers Registration Act 2000.
- hold or be able to obtain a Registration to Work with Vulnerable People (Registration Status – Employee/Volunteer) issued in Tasmania
